Sire Lines That Lead in Producing Early and Extreme Speed in Harness Racers.

By GURNEY C. GUE.

Despite the greatly reduced number of ung trotters in the country the threa-ar-olds campaigned this sesson were e fastest lot ever seen in the Grand the fastest lot ever seen in the Grand Circuit. About thirty-five well bred ones took the word in the futurities and other colt races of the campaign from Cleveland to Affanta and the returns show that all of them could beat 2:10, while nearly a score could trot in 2:06 or better. Even with that degree of speed, which would have been deemed sensational only a few years ago, several of them finished behind the money in nearly every race of the series.

series.

The black filly Rose Scott, bred and owned by Henry Oliver of Pittsbursh, was probably the pick of the lot, though Nelson Dillon, bred and owned by A. B. Coxe of Philadelphia, and Guardian Trust, the property of Mrs. H. M. Hanna of Cievchand, fairly divided the honors of the season, Coming out green nonors of the season. Coming out green at the Kalamawo meeting in July Guardian Trust took a record of 2:07% in winning his maiden race against a rield of aged horses. Two weeks later at Toledo he won the Matron Stakes. rield of aged horses. Two weeks later at Toledo he won the Matron Stakes, the first of the season's futurities, in 2054, and the next week the badly named Championship Stallion Stakes at Cleveland, cutting his record to 2:06. At Columbus, where he first met Rose scott, he won a heat in 2:054, but she beat him back in the same time and left him in fifth piace when she repeated again in 2:054 to win the Horse Review Futurity. Though he won no part of the purse in the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington he was really the colt that Rose Scott had to beat, and she did it by fording him to trot the first half in 1:01 and go on at the killing clip until he went to a wild break on the upper turn in the second heat.

Rose Scott Was Saved.

HUNTER BREEDING SOCIETY IS FORMED

Last Sunday's Horse Show at Brighthome Farm.

When Miss Eleonora R. Sears of Boston sold her show horses and ponies at auction in Durland's Riding Academy last year, and announced her withdrawal from the show ring she retained the bantam hackney harness mare Irvington Nipper Girl, then a four-year-old, for which she was reported to have paid 35,000 to Andrew Little, manager of J. Macy Willets' Cassills Farm. Miss Sears still owns the handsome little daughter of Irvington Sunbeam and Maid of Irvington, and has entered her in the coming National Horse Show.

Mr. Willets said yesterday it was Irvington Autocrat and not Mighty Mite that won the American Hackney Horse Society's medal at the recent Brockton Horse Show. Conditions of the class were unusual. The stallions entered were first shown together, and then the mares tried conclusions among themselves, the winner in each division combeting in the final. Mighty Mite won the class for mares, but had to be content with the reserve ribbon when she met Irvington Autocrat. The latter pony is a half brother to Irvington Nipper Girl, both being out of Maid of Irvington, a well known winner of ten years ago and a full sister to Hamilton Model. Nipper, Jr., and Irvington Peggy. Autocrat went through the Brockton show unbeaten, winning four first prizes in harness and in hand. When Mrs. Loula Long Combe's newly imported English pony Invasion, formerly Little Briton, won the harness class for ponies not under 13.2 hands it was Mr. Willets's Masterpiece that he defeated. Mr. Willets said yesterda;

Announcement is made that Roger H. Bayly has joined the staff of John McE. Bowman in the Hotel Biltmore and the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye. N. Y. Mr. Bayly comes from an old Virginia family long famed for its hunters and horsemen. He has been a famillar figure at the National Horse Show and had once one of the best show stables and hunters in America. Prices for work horses again favored the buyers in the Monday and Thursday auctions at Fiss, Doerr & Carroll's, where unward of 500 fresh and seasoned offerings changed hands. The horse market is just about as sensitive as the stock market is to good or bad news, and the happenings of the week held little encoursgement to take on any more horses than were actually required for immediate use. No doubt the commercial skies will soon be clearer and then the timid buyers will cheerfully pay 25 per cent more for their teams, though not without regret that they

Though William H. Wanamaker, Jr., sold seven of his show horses and ponies last week, he will have enough to make a strong bid for the ribbon at the National next month. His newly imported hackney mare, Kitty Melbourne, and Sir Eric are in the $2,000 stake for har-ness ponies, while Eve, Netherhall's Pride and Fireaway are in the regular harness classes.

While the Meadow Brook Hunter

Parm last Sunday its promoters embraced the opportunity to solicit members for the Hunter Improvement Society, which it is proposed to form. The organization committee comprised Thomas Hitchcock, H. I. Nicholas, F. S. Von Stade, Samuel Willists, E. L. Winthrop R. Penn Smith, Jr., S. Bryce Wing and W. R. Grace. Ed. L. Winthrop R. Penn Smith, Jr., S. Bryce Wing and w. R. Grace. Ed. L. Wenrick circulated the membership blanks and obtained the subscriptions of a large number of the fox hunting men and women present. To encourage through horse shows and by other means the breeding of hunters is the object of the society.

The Goshen Hunt Club held a horse show on October 14 at the Orange County Driving Park, with competitions for all classes of horses from farm teams to flyers of the Grand Circuit. Mrs. Cooper Hewitt's Starlight won the ladies' saddle class and the open class for saddle horses under 15.2 hands, with C. C. Stillman's Dolly second in each class. Picardy, entered by Miss Fanny Wicks of Tuxedo Park was first in the class for saddle horses over 15.2 hands, and the same exhibitor won the class for hunters with Thunder. H. S. Crossman's Garry Owen and Blarney were second and third. W. D. Grand and J. F. De Vine judged the saddle and hunter classes, and William Carrite drafters.
